

Contents

Acknowledgments

ix

1 The Meaning of Death in Classical Hollywood	1
Practicing Film Theory	1
Death on the Line	3
A Politics of Death	8
2 Two Platos: Death, Truth, and Knowledge	11
A Rehearsal for Death	11
Access, Authority, and Tests	12
The Superfluity of a Truth-Revealing Death	19
The Misery of Truth	21
3 Embodying the Past	26
The Killability Test	26
A Logic of Singular Evil	29
4 Melodrama and the Shaping of Desires to Come	45
Sublating Death	45
Obstacles and Goals	46
Desiring Death	53
Impossible Legacies	61
5 Cults of the Dead and Powers of the False	66
Retaining the Dead	66
Westerns and Falsehoods	70
The Forming of a Cult	77
A Brand that Sticks	81
6 A Perpetual Present: Death and the War Film	86
An Absurd Death	86
The Hollywood War Machine	88
The Exception of State	93

7 Conclusions: The Ends of Classical Death 107
 Billy Wilder and Hollywood's "Auschwitz" 108
 The Vicissitudes of the Killability Test 120
 The Virtual Frankenstein 134

Notes 151
 Index 194

ix Acknowledgments

1 The Meaning of Death in Classical Hollywood
 1 Franchising Film Theory
 3 Death on the Line
 8 A Politics of Death

11 Two Platos: Death, Truth, and Knowledge
 11 A Rehearsal for Death
 12 Access, Authority, and Tests
 19 The Superiority of a Truth-Revealing Death
 21 The Misery of Truth

25 Embodying the Past
 26 The Killability Test
 29 A Logic of Singular Evil

43 Melodrama and the Shaping of Desires to Come
 45 Substantiating Death
 46 Obstacles and Goals
 53 Destraining Death
 61 Impossible Legacies

66 Culls of the Dead and Power of the False
 66 Retaining the Dead
 70 Westerns and Falsehoods
 77 The Forming of a Cult
 81 A Board that Sticks

85 A Perpetual Present: Death and the War Film
 85 An Absurd Death
 88 The Hollywood War Machine
 93 The Exception of State