

CONTENTS

Introduction 7

CHAPTER ONE: CINEMATIC REPRESENTATION OF MENTAL PROCESSES

Initial Problems 9

Suggestion of Thought through External Activities 10

Suggestion of Thought through Objective Correlatives 12

Potentialities of the Film Medium in Simulating Thought 16

The Term "Stream of Consciousness" 20

Value of Cinematic Representation of Thought 26

Resnais' Preoccupation with Stream of Consciousness 31

CHAPTER TWO: THE FLASH OF THOUGHT

Brief Injection of Mental Images Simulating Thought 33

The Stream of Consciousness in La guerre est finie 38

Analysis of Mental Units 40

Value Added by the Stream of Consciousness 98

The Stream of Consciousness in Hiroshima mon amour 103

Analysis of Mental Units 104

Value Added by the Stream of Consciousness 148

CHAPTER THREE: MENTAL STRUCTURING

Narrative Structure Simulating Thought in Je t'aime, je t'aime 153

The Anchoring Reality 158

The Mental Flow 164

The Character's Mental Selection 169

The Character's Mental Succession 177

Value Added by the Stream of Consciousness 181

CONTENT

CHAPTER FOUR: MENTAL FLUIDITY

- Narrative Fluidity Simulating Thought 185
- The Stream of Consciousness in Providence 187
- The Fictional Premise 187
- The Anchoring Reality 194
- The Character's Mental Flow 199
- The Stream of Consciousness in Last Year at Marienbad 207
- The Fictional Premise 207
- The Gamut of Possibilities 210
- The Anchoring Reality 217
- The Characters' Mental Flow 222

CONCLUSIONS: STRUCTURAL PRINCIPLES

- Anchoring 230
- Mental Selection 233
- Mental Succession 234
- Enigmatic Mental Images 235
- Patterns of Repetition 236
- Alternatives to Structural Principles 237

CREDITS OF THE EXAMINED FILMS 239

BIBLIOGRAPHY 245